COSTA DEL SOL—SPAIN

Costa del Sol is not by chance known as Costa del Golf. More than 70 golf courses, lots of schools, the best climate in Europe and exceptional land, sea and air connections make Malaga province a paradise for this sport lovers. Do we play a few holes at the Mediterranean beachfront?

Historical destination

Costa del Sol has a very deep-rooted golf tradition. In 1925 the Real Club de Campo, Parador de Golf de Malaga at present was founded and since then on, love for this sport has done nothing but grow. But it would not be just until the sixties when actually the golf courses' bloom started. Nowadays, the area has the largest concentration of golf courses in Spain and even in Europe.

Golf courses with star

Many of the courses built in the Golf Coast are works of renowned architects as Robert Trent Jones, who designed the yard of Real Club Valderrama, one of the most representative golf courses in Spain. This course was the first hosting the famed tournament Ryder Cup outside the UK.

World stars within this sport have done their bit to the drawing and development for lots of golf courses in the province. Tom Simpson, Michael Campbell, Peter Gustafsson, Cabell Robinson and Miguel Angel Jimenez are some of the names that have contributed with their drawings to create great golf courses in Costa del Sol.

Much more than golf

But nobody can live by golf alone! When the golf day ends, you will find plenty of cultural and leisure chances. You can take the opportunity to visit any of its 103 towns and villages, discover its museums, walk the streets at Malaga center and soak up its culture.

Gastronomy is another of its main attractions, with a perfect synthesis between tradition and avant-garde, with eight restaurants in the province awarded with a total of nine Estrellas Michelin.

ITALY—PIEMONTE

General info on the Region of Piedmont

Turin, the main city of the Piemonte Region and home to Fiat cars, is an elegant city with historic Baroque cafes and architecture, high-quality shops, and interesting museums, which include the famed Egyptian Museum and the Shroud of Turin (only occasionally put on display for viewing). Just outside Torino, you can visit the Baroque Savoy Palace and gardens at La Venaria Reale and a little farther west is the stunning monastery, Saint Michael's Abbey, one of Europe's most important Benedictine monasteries.

Much of Italy's best wines are found in the Piemonte region. The area around Alba incorporates Barolo, Barbaresco, and Roero while the province of Asti is known for Dolcetto, Barbera, and Moscato. This wine area, with beautiful rolling hills topped by picturesque towns, is known as Langhe.

This part of Piemonte is famous for its aromatic white truffles found in fall and Alba holds one of Italy's top truffle fairs. Many restaurants serve truffles during the autumn truffle season and offer special truffle meals. Visiting a few of the wine and truffle towns of the Langhe makes a good excursion any time of year but is especially nice in fall.

The Langhe is also a great area to see castles. Some castles can be toured and a few, such as Grinzane Cavour, offer wine tasting and wine shops.

The Province of Biella stretches across northern Piedmont and borders the Valle d'Aosta Valley to the west.

In this unspoiled land, nature has many faces, such as the picturesque Biellese pre-Alpine mountains dotted with pretty valleys, and in the south, the pleasant banks of Lake Viverone, a very popular spot with tourists. The reserves enclose wonderful landscapes: the wide moor of the Riserva Naturale Orientata delle Baragge, the Alpine environment called the Zegna Oasis with its characteristic Via dei Rododendri, and the Parco Naturale della Burcina, covered in flowers and colors just in time for in spring. Perfectly pairing with the wonders of nature are religious, cultural and artistic treasures galore.

This is a land of marked spirituality, as the many religious sites would attest; the Marian Sanctuary of Oropa, one of the most important shrines in Europe, certainly stands out.

In the south, the remains of ancient churches and villages from Middle Ages can still be seen along the Via Francigena, a route for pilgrims that historically connected Rome to the northern world.

This territory encompasses picturesque villages and charming settlements, walled complexes that have remained almost constants in time. Among these is the Settlement of Candelo, unique in Europe.

The charm of Biella Province is tied to its local culture, including the production of articles from high quality wool and crafts, and an amazing culinary tradition and great wines.

Biella is the center of Italian production of fine woolen and cashmere products, which can be bought directly at a discount (and huge savings if compared to U.S. pricing) from the outlet stores of labels such as Ermenegildo Zegna, Fila, Cerruti, Piacenza or directly from the manufacturers that supply them. And for purchases of over $150, non-EU residents get a tax refund equal to ~11% of the invoice!

The Carignano Restaurant: where tradition meets innovation. Elegant and reserved, with a charming view of an internal garden, it is ideal both for romantic candlelit dinners and for receiving distinguished guests. Excellent reviews from the leading restaurant guides, from L'Espresso magazine's Guida ai Ristoranti d'Italia to the Guide Gantie, from the Guide Michelin to the Guida Critica & Golosa, not forgetting the gastronomic guide "I Cento50 di Torino e del Piemonte" which has awarded it as the best hotel restaurant.

FRANCE—BURGUNDY REGION

General info on the Region of Burgundy

Burgundy is one of the most fascinating regions in France, often labelled as the "Land of fine art and living", it is fully of surprises and contrasts. A vast and varied landscape with wide fertile river beds, dense forests, granite hills and limestone valleys.

Day to day life is easy to enjoy and always at a snail's pace. The secret is good food and good wine, with a dash of lush vegetation gently carved by winding country lanes in rolling hillsides. The ancient capital city Dijon is an absolute must to visit when you are in the area.

Canal boat cruises

One of the most important changes for Burgundy was the construction of the Burgundy Canal (Le Canal de Bourgogne). It dramatically changed the social evolution for hundreds of small villages and hamlets. The canal is a masterpiece of pre-industrial revolution technology, spanning more than 250 kilometres in length. The canal struggles to span across the region, slowly winding in smooth curves along the plains, or rising steeply with a concentration of canal locks looking like a staircase before reaching the summit at Pouilly en Auxois. For almost two hundred years the waters of this man-made canal have carried the weight of wooden or steel hulled barges. The construction of the canal has changed the destiny of Burgundy, raising its status from a rural farming area to a that of a great state with navigable waterways connecting the north of Europe to the Mediterranean Sea.

Heritage and history

The Celts, Romans, Cistercians and the powerful Burgundian Dukes sculpted the towns and villages through the centuries. The feudal rule was imposed for many years by the local lords. The dukedom of Burgundy was at one time a large empire spreading through eastern France, into Germany, up to Belgium and the Flanders. Enemies of the French crown and allied with the the English king, the succession of Dukes held a solid frontier which eventually became a province with Louis XI, then finally entering the realm of France at the end of the 17th century.

The Catholic church was a driving force of inspiration and energy, the construction of the basilica Vezelay near Avallon, which was founded in 868 AD. The building of the abbeys of Cluny, Citeaux, La Bus-siere built by the Cistercian and Benedictine orders. There are examples of many of the epochs such as Roman, Gothic and Renaissance such as the castles of Ancey le Franc and Tanlay, or the fortified chateau of Chateauneuf en Auxois. The traditional colored tiles used on the roofs can be seen in many places and that of the Hospices de Beaune is a highlight to be seen when visiting Burgundy's old capital. The colored tiles originate from eastern Europe, and has remained a tradition in Burgundy. Even in small villages you'll see examples of glazed roofs breaking the skyline, appealing and relaxing to the eye. » Read more about the local history

Regional flavors and the cuisine

As the area is a historical crossroads from the north of Europe to Italy and the Mediterranean coasts, the region has inherited influences from many other cultures and regions. The ancient trade routes along the Rhône and Saone river valleys have been travelled upon throughout the centuries, bringing spices and ingredients which are used in the local cuisine. The traditional cuisine is rich and tasty, which can be enjoyed at a very affordable price in many of the small traditional restaurants in villages and towns. Whilst the gastro-nomic restaurants with the highest standards and star ratings can be found in all the corners of Burgundy. Wines were introduced by the Romans as they progressed northwards along the Rhone valley; and then mastered by the monks at Nuits Saint George, creating famous names like Volany, Pommard, Gevery and Aloxe Corton which are now known throughout the world. The vineyards spread southwards for miles on the slopes of the hills, with many producers still using the traditional methods, oak barrels and years of aging in the coolness of vaulted cellars to give us some of the best know Crus. As you travel south through the region, you will pass through the wine growing areas of Chablis, Cote de Beaune, Cote de Nuits, Chalonais and Maçonais before arriving in the Beaujolais. There is a concentration of Pinot Noir and Chardonay grapes in the vineyards, but also lesser well know names such as the Aligoté white which is used in the famous Kir served as a refreshing aperitif.

The varieties of Cheeses are abundant, in all shapes, sizes and colors, strong in character such as the Epoisse or mild and fresh. To be tasted with fresh bread and some of the famous red or white wines. The white Charolais cattle, which can be seen in the green pastures on the hill slopes, bred to give a remarkable quality of beef, which gives us one of Burgundy's most well know dished, the Boeuf Bourguignon. Markets and local fresh products are plentiful, cultivated in the fertile river plains of the Saone. The art of Mustards, Cassis, and even Ginger breads are other secret ingredients for a refined cuisine. The art of a gourmet table requires talent and experience which you can find in some of the worlds finest restaurants such as Bernard Loiseau, Joigny, Marc Meneau.
